Director NCSA visits Sector at Air Component Command Ramstein

Ramstein, Germany. German Lieutenant General Ulrich Wolf, Director of NATO Communication and Information Systems Services Agency (NCSA) arrived for a two-day visit at Ramstein Air Base to inspect his NCSA Sector Ramstein as part of his annual tour of NCSA sectors. On this occasion he was particularly interested in meeting the customer (CC- Air HQ Ramstein) and the NCSA Sector personnel. He was greeted and received by the NCSA Ramstein Sector Commander, Colonel Arve Senderud.

During his visit the NCSA Director took the opportunity to meet with the Deputy Commander CC-Air Ramstein, Air Marshal David Walker, and the Headquarters' Chief of Staff, Major General Jac Jansen. Both generals confirmed their satisfaction with the good relations between CC-Air Ramstein and the NCSA Sector Ramstein and its CIS (Communication and Information Systems) services. An important part of the visit were the briefings of CC-Air HQ Ramstein A3 division about the NCS PE Review and progress with the HQ's transformation, followed by serious discussions about the consequences for future CIS services.

"We feel confident that the issues we brought to his attention will find a practical overall good solution," was Colonel Senderud's assessment of these discussion.

The central part of the NCSA Director's visit at Ramstein was a walk-through of the sector squadrons and shops. "It is an excellent opportunity for me to meet all the members of this sector and to listen to what they have to say and to share their experiences," said General Wolf.

"As always both CC-Air and the Sector appreciated the visit of General Wolf. It gave us the opportunity to address issues (both long-term and short-term). We are definitely looking forward to see Lieutenant General Wolf in Ramstein again", Colonel Senderud wrapped up the general's visit.

Next step on the general's tour was the NCSA Sector at CC-Land Headquarters Heidelberg.
